DEFENDANTS' REPLY TO PLAINTIFF'S RESPONSE TO DEFENDANTS'
NOTICE OF SUPPLEMENTAL EVIDENCE

In his Response to Defendants' Notice of Supplemental Evidence (the "Response"), Plaintiff concedes that his document production to date has been "very inadequate." (Resp. at 1.) While Defendants appreciate Plaintiff's newfound candor, the Response does not resolve Defendants' request for adequate responses to Interrogatories 7, 12, and 14. See Dkt. 85 at 1.

Further, this acknowledgment comes after months of motion practice and repeated misrepresentations that Plaintiff had fully complied with Defendants' discovery requests. Plaintiff represented to Defendants on multiple occasions that "Plaintiff's document production was completed" and that Defendants "now have all of Plaintiff's documents." (See Mot. to Compel, Dkt. 85, at Exhibit 15.) He made similar representations to this Court. (Pl.'s Resp. & Mem. in Opp. to Defs.' Mot. to Compel, Dkt. 90, at 1.) ("Plaintiff has produced all responsive documents in his possession and control."). Only after Defendants repeatedly demonstrated the incompleteness of his discovery responses did he finally admit that these statements were untrue.

Plaintiff's recent concession does nothing to address the significant expense Defendants incurred seeking discovery from Plaintiff or the months of delay that resulted from Plaintiff's repeated refusal to honor his discovery obligations.<sup>1</sup> Nor does it allay Defendants' well-founded concerns that, if left unchecked, Plaintiff may yet again prove either unable or unwilling to conduct a comprehensive search of his devices, documents, email accounts, and cloud storage accounts.

The Response cites Plaintiff's ongoing health problems as the primary reason for his failure to adequately respond to Defendants' discovery requests. (Response at 1.) Yet, as Defendants explain in their Motion to Compel, Plaintiff's representations of "completeness" pre-dated any claim of health-related delay in document production. Simply put, the issue is one of a wholesale failure to abide by the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure and his discovery obligations.

Plaintiff's newfound acknowledgement that his prior production was insufficient does not obviate the need for this Court to grant Defendants' Motion to Compel. To the contrary, Plaintiff's Response only serves to underscore the importance of Court intervention to ensure Plaintiff's compliance with his discovery obligations. Having been confronted with the inadequacy of his prior discovery responses—and his misrepresentations about those responses—Plaintiff is now asking Defendants and this Court to take him at his word. Defendants should not be required to be so trusting, particularly in light of Plaintiff's past misrepresentations about his previous document productions.

Finally, although the Response indicates that Mr. Clevenger has taken over as lead counsel, Mr. Clevenger is no newcomer to this lawsuit. To the contrary, he has been involved as counsel of record for Plaintiff from the very outset of this litigation. (See Compl., Dkt. 1.) Plaintiff mistakenly appears to believe that minimizing his counsel's actions in a case absolves the Plaintiff from the responsibility of complying with the Federal Rules, including Rules 11, 26, and 37.<sup>2</sup> And, despite attesting almost two months ago that he “was not familiar with the evidence obtained by or exchanged between the parties,”<sup>3</sup> Mr. Clevenger’s lead role has not remedied the dearth of documents produced by Plaintiff. Nevertheless, Plaintiff asks this Court to take him at his word that Plaintiff’s past misstatements will not be repeated. Regardless of who is acting as lead counsel, Defendants have no assurances that either of Plaintiff’s attorneys will ensure that all of Plaintiff’s accounts and devices are adequately searched absent the relief Defendants have requested from this Court.

In light of Plaintiff’s track record of incomplete discovery responses and misrepresentations about those responses, this Court should exercise its “broad discretion to control . . . discovery.” Mayo v. Tri-Bell Indus., Inc., 787 F.2d 1007, 1012 (5th Cir. 1986). Accordingly, this Court should grant Defendants’ Motion to Compel and require the following:

1. Plaintiff must retain a third-party vendor mutually acceptable to Defendants to conduct a forensic examination, at Plaintiff’s expense, of each of his e-mail addresses,<sup>4</sup> shared email accounts, cloud storage accounts, apps, messaging platforms,<sup>5</sup> hard document files, and devices, including but not limited to computers, mobile phones, iPads, and tablets. The parties shall establish appropriate search terms within 15 days of any Order requiring a forensic examination. The forensic examination shall be completed within 30 days of the search terms being agreed upon, and the documents produced within 30 days of the completion of the forensic exam.

2. Plaintiff must certify to the Court within 30 days of any Order granting Defendants' Motion to Compel that he has produced to Defendants—and will continue to produce on a rolling basis as required by Rule 26(e)—all documents and communications that Plaintiff has produced or received in connection with any of the following lawsuits and/or arbitrations arising therefrom, including deposition transcripts with exhibits, declarations, other testimony, and copies of unredacted pleadings and exhibits to pleadings:<sup>6</sup>
  - a. Wheeler v. Twenty-First Century Fox, Inc., et. al., Case No. 1:17-CV-05087, filed in the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York.

3. Plaintiff and his counsel must provide declarations to the Court within 60 days of any Order granting Defendants' Motion to Compel describing the search they have conducted for all documents and communications responsive to NPR's requests for production and certify that they have produced all responsive, non-privileged documents and communications within Plaintiffs possession, custody, or control to Defendants.
4. Plaintiff produce unaltered, unredacted versions of the documents he has already produced.
5. Plaintiff provide responses to Interrogatories No. 7, 12, and 14.

Respectfully submitted,
